

2022 - 2023

Master's in Teaching & Induction Program

"Great teaching is at the heart of every great school"

The Master's in Teaching & Induction Program will help students use research and practitioner literature to address problems of practice in the classroom while developing an inquiry-based mindset to improve instructional skills.

Our Approach

Reach believes that an inquiry and research-based approach to teaching is vitally important to high quality teaching. The program supports teachers to move from using habits of inquiry in addressing problems of practice to designing robust research questions, and consulting research and professional literature to expand their thinking about their practice. Teachers apply this new knowledge to a problem of practice, gather resultant data and analyze their findings.

Program Goals

Candidates who complete the Master's in Teaching & Induction Program earn a Master of Education in Teaching and a California Clear Teaching Credential while developing into skilled classroom leaders, with a mindset toward inquiry in education.

What our candidates say about the program:

"Perhaps, decades into my teaching career, I might have developed the skills and approach Reach has taught me. Instead, I have developed early in my career the habits, skills, and understanding of a professional teacher - I am able to use evidence and best practices systematically to improve my students' learning. Learning with Reach provides a weekly opportunity to apply and see results in my classroom"

• Program participant

"The learning that resulted from my participation in the program has shifted my perception of what I am capable of as a teacher. My research experience allowed me to support student learning in ways I never imagined."

• Program participant

Who is eligible for the Master's in Teaching & Induction Program?

Candidate Qualifications

To be eligible, you must meet the following conditions:

Teachers who have completed our Teaching Academy's Intern Program, earning a Preliminary Credential (without TPA or RICA renewal codes) through Reach.

or

Teachers who have a preliminary California teaching credential from another accredited credentialing institution may be eligible upon completion of one year of TIP (teacher induction) and an additional course.

Teachers interested in this option should contact Reach as soon as possible for additional information.

or

Any teacher who has completed the regular Reach TIP (ECO excluded).

and

Teachers must have at least one class of students in their credential area.

Tuition Fees

Master of Education
in Teaching (M.Ed.):

$8,100

California Clear
Teaching Credential:

$8,100*

*An annual tuition of $2,300 for the cost of teacher induction will be billed directly to your employer. The employer can elect to share the cost of the remainder of the tuition.

Apply Now grad.apply.reach.edu

Reach University is accredited by the WASC Senior College and University Commission.